“OLD NEWSPAPER”

where I began ...

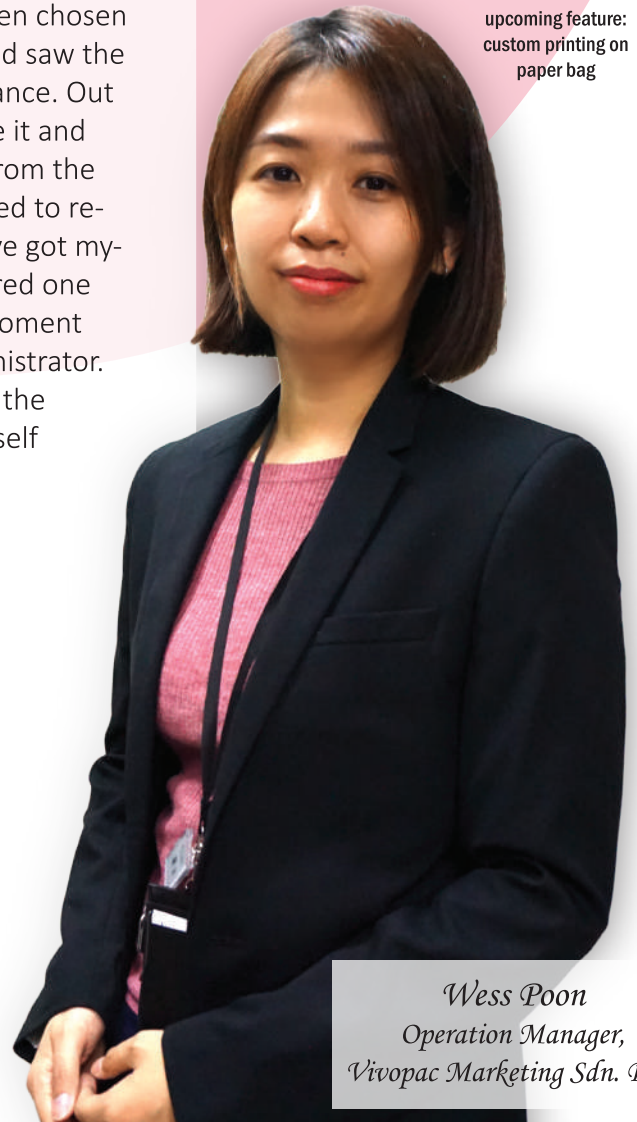

I have been with the company for more than 10 years now. Here is the funny part of my journey, where it was actually right before I have been chosen to be part of the team. I pick up an “old newspaper” earlier and saw the vacancy for this company, it caught my attention on the first glance. Out of excitement to break free from the city, I’ve decided to ignore it and went for a holiday with my family. Just right after I came back from the holiday, I gave a call to the company and they even got surprised to receive a question regarding the position. They told me that I have got myself an expired newspaper, which I already knew it was an expired one at the first place. Well, luck was on my side as I call at a right moment when they were actually had an opening position for the administrator. They had decided to give me a shot for an interview. I went for the interview with Mr. and Mrs. Wong, and managed to secure myself a position with the company. On the date of 14th May 2012, I made my first entrance into this company. Never back down before we even try, right?

Five years with Helipro Enterprise Sdn. Bhd., and another five more years with Metropoly Packaging Sdn. Bhd., I was next being transferred to Vivopac Marketing Sdn. Bhd. as an Operational Manager, which has completing my experiences with all the three companies for this organization. For a woman who had zero knowledge regarding the packaging industry before I’ve started with these companies, I have made all my way up from an administrator to be one of the main characters to decide the direction for this established organization. It was a very difficult journey to learn everything from null to numbers, and I’m still learning to be the best person for my current position. I'm feeling so honored by the warm gesture they have given to me since the day one and everyone is so supportive here.

Mr. and Mrs. Wong have been my mentor along this whole path. After spending five years' time in special order packaging (Helipro), I had requested to be switched to a new position to learn on something new and they had granted my wish as I had been transferred to the factory (Metropoly) to take control on the production. Having the knowledge from the previous position, plastics production was totally a whole lot new experience to me as it was actually completely different from what I had done before. Another challenging chapter of life but somehow, I managed to pull everything together under my skin and made my remarkable appearance there by introducing the manual of standard procedure for the production as it was never been made before. The manual has reducing the time taken for a new machine conductor to learn on every production procedure within a very short time.

Moving forward, being promoted as Operational Manager at Vivopac Marketing Sdn. Bhd. is not completely something new to me as I have learnt to handle the manpower at the factory beforehand. The only different is that the previous one was on the production and now it is in the sales field.

My only hope is to be able to grow this company to become the main packaging supplier in Malaysia as in like when people are thinking about the packaging, we are the first one to come into their mind.
